We have had our xm radio for 6 months and during our last trip had we not had the weather & traffic channel we would have been going right into the path of a tornado not only once but numerous times. The route that we take is right thru the midwest which as you well know has had very severe weather for the past 3 weeks. I would recommend that all of you not leave home with out one because God forbid that you or your family be going on vacation and the storms that we have experience in the past weeks continue happening with your xm radio you can at least put the weather channel on & get the latest alerts that could save you & your families lives.
